

Parris Johnson Jr.

Analysis

The following report provides an in-depth analytical analysis of Ohio State LT Paris Johnson Jr. in support of his draft eligibility status and value. The report provides insight into an advanced analytical breakdown of Johnson in comparison to Top Modern-Era OTs, NFL Hall of Fame OTs and 2023 NFL Draft Class OTs.

About Paris Johnson Jr. (PJJ)

Paris Johnson Jr. is YOUR future franchise OT who has the build, experience, and analytically-proven growth that projects as a future Hall of Famer for your team's O-Line corner for years to come! With a build of 6' 6", 311 lbs. PJJ substantially beats out all OTs in the 2023 Draft Class. With a build engineered for durability and superstar success, Johnson is the can't miss OT prospect of the decade.

Table of Contents

- 1) About Paris Johnson Jr.
- 2) Identifying what makes a top-performing modern-era OT
- 3) Comparing PJJ to top modern OT talent
- 4) Analyzing and identifying what makes an NFL Hall of Fame OT
- 5) Paris Johnson Jr Hall of Fame Comparison and Analysis
- 6) Why not other draft prospects?
- 7) Paris Johnson Jr Growth and Development Depiction
- 8) Why PJJ is the pick

What Makes A Top Performing Modern-Era OT

Some of the top modern OT's who are on pace for the NFL Hall of Fame.
Shown above (left to right): Tyron Smith, Tristian Wirfs, Penei Sewell, Ryan Ramczyk, Trent Williams

The top NFL OTs (based on PFF score) were analyzed based on build, durability, and background. All metrics used were implemented and compared to current NFL Hall of Fame OTs to identify the build of modern-era future HOF franchise OT. A match to the averages shown below strongly indicates league best projection :

Modern Franchise OT

Desired Minimum Arm Length: 34.5 in

Desired Minimum Hand Size: 10.1 in

Average Height: 6' 6"

Average Weight: 316 lbs

Average BMI: 36.84

Average Durability:

95% Games Played

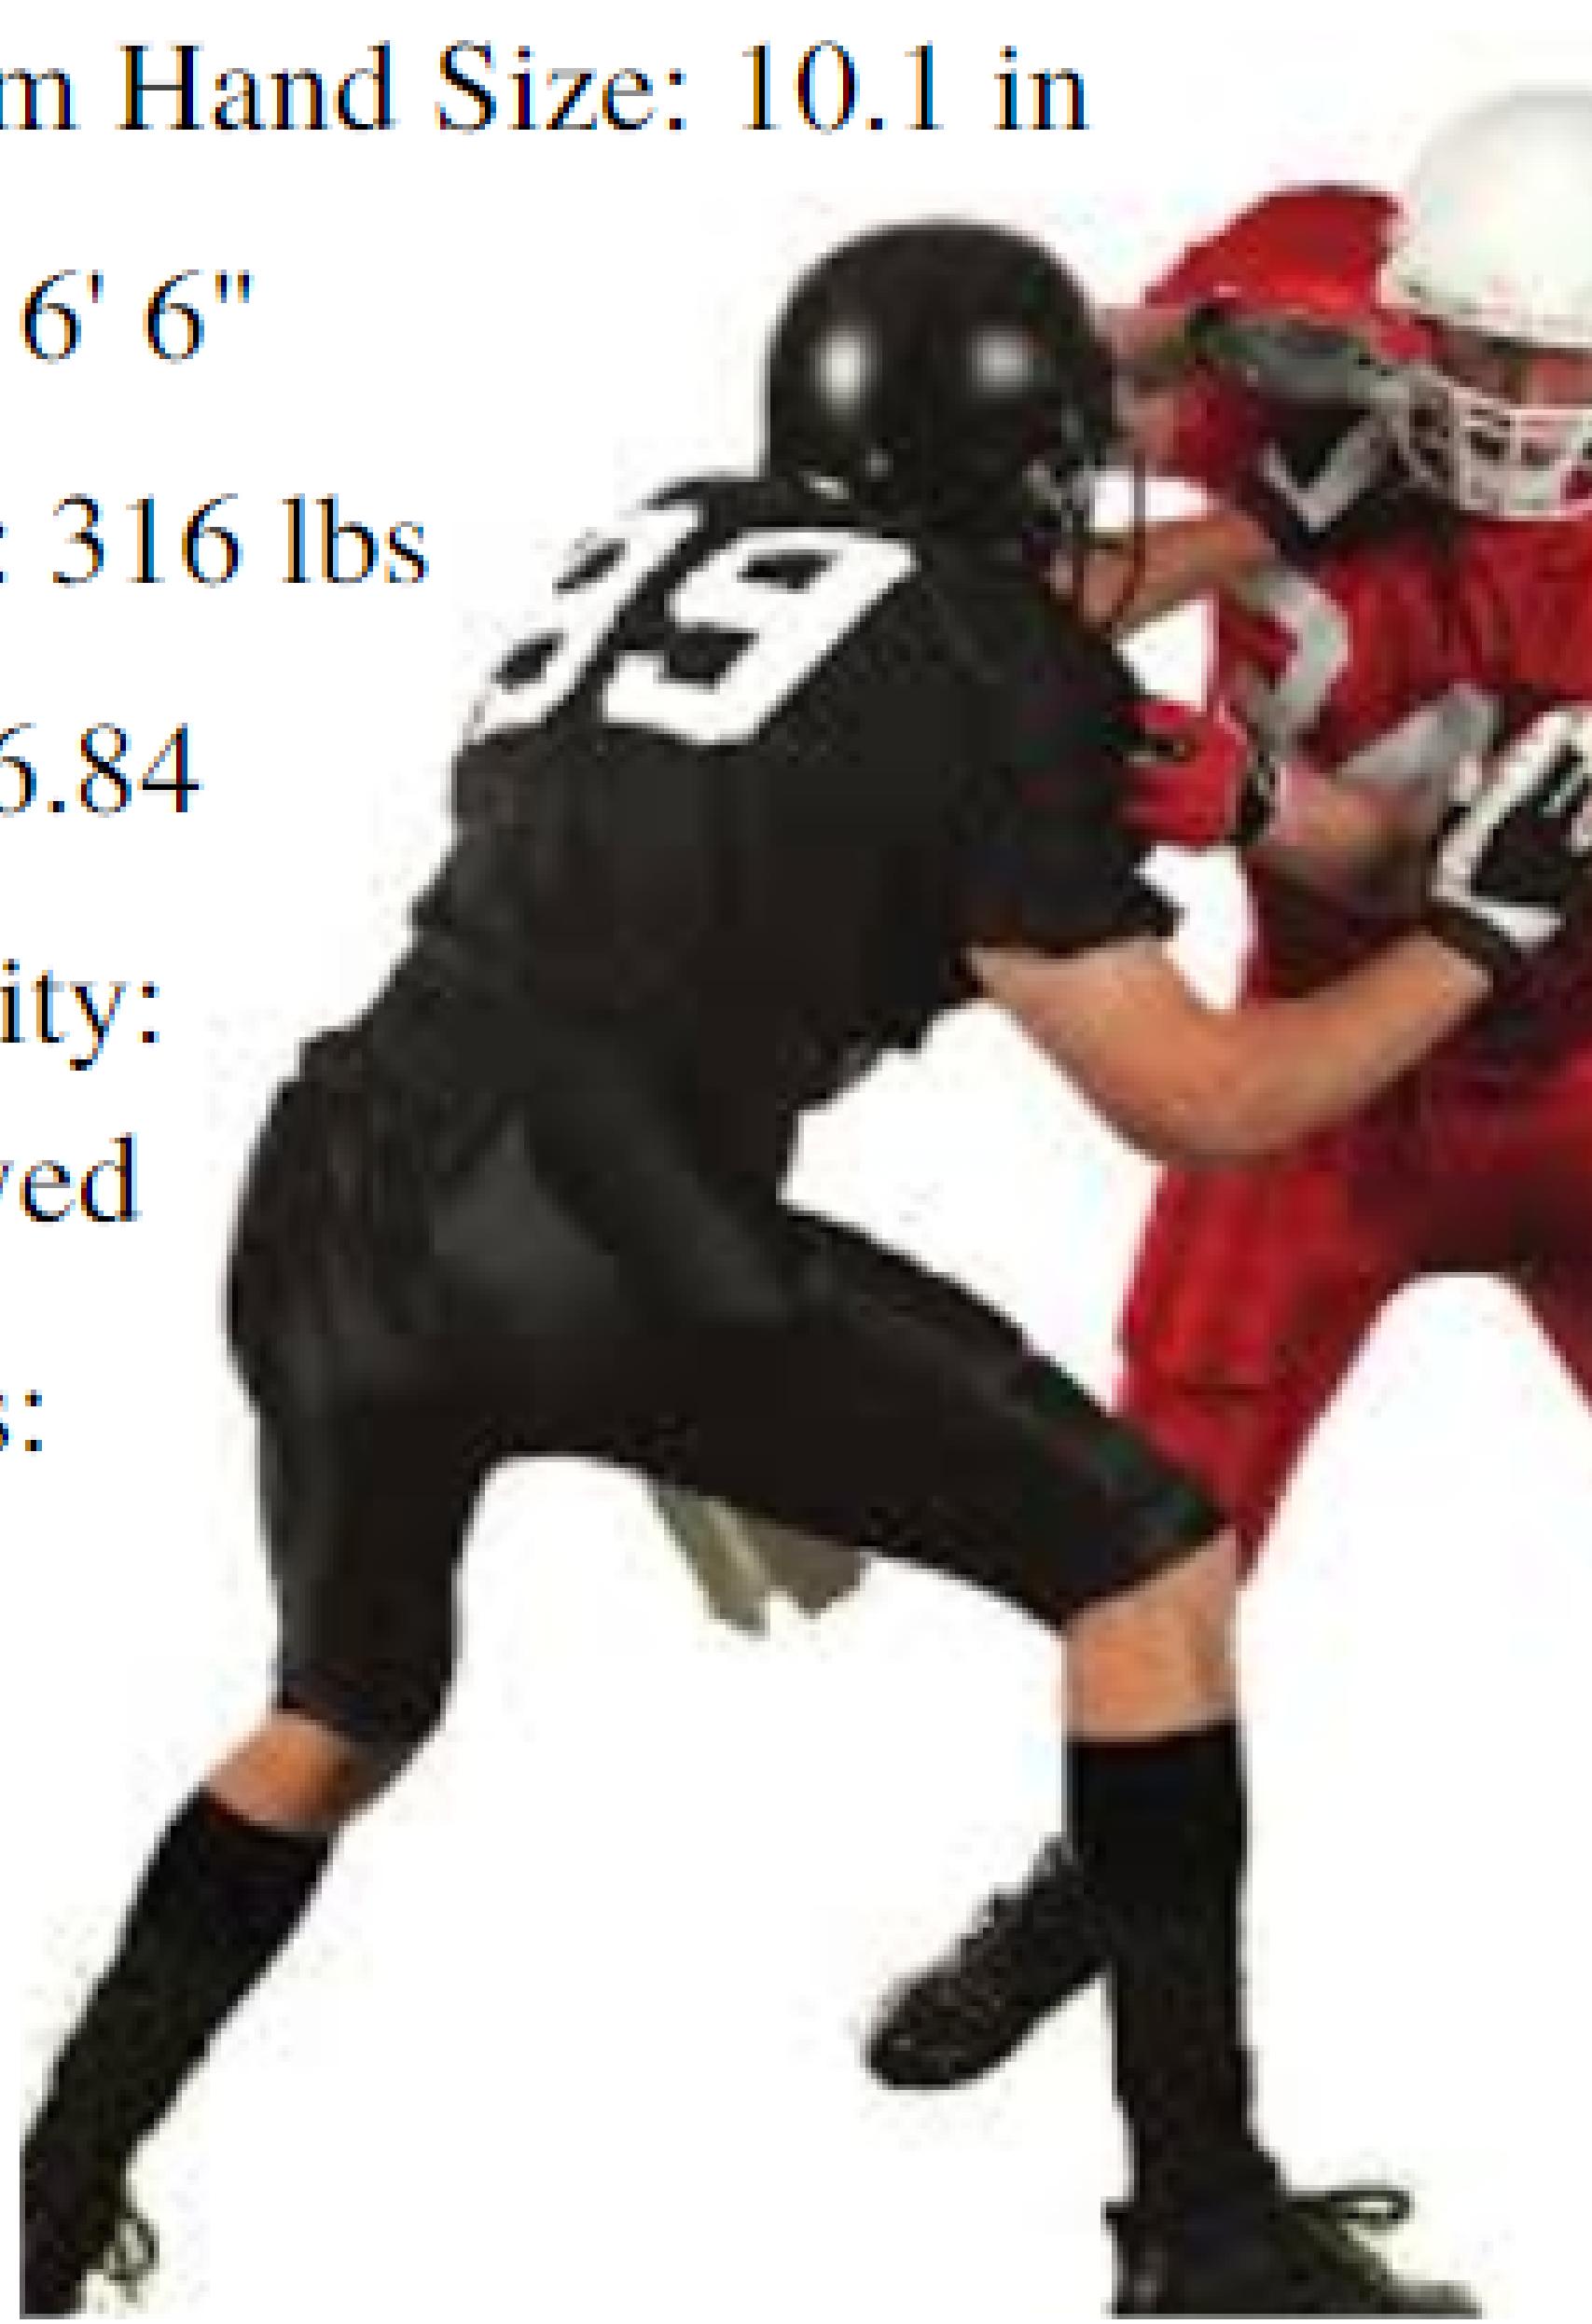

Top Conferences:

PAC12, BIG10,

BIG12, ACC

Top Talent:

13 Years, 99.4%

PJJ to Top Modern OT Comparison

Paris Johnson Jr

- Arm Length: 35.75 in.
- Hand Size: 11 in.
- Height: 6' 6"
- Weight: 311 lbs.
- Conference: BIG10
- College: THE Ohio St.

Top Modern OT Comparison

- Significantly Above Average: 93rd Percentile
- Significantly Above Average: 99th Percentile
- Desired Franchise OT Height
- Around Average with Superior Room for Muscle Growth
- Top 3 OT success producing
 - Tied for 3rd with four current OTs. High success shown by all such OSU OTs.

Overall Takeaway

Paris Johnson Jr's build lights up the eyes of NFL scouts, but the data above proves that he far exceeds expectations as a crafted future NFL leading OT. With a background, build, and experience portfolio at the absolute top of the 2023 draft class, PJJ confirms that he is a lock as the top OT talent and justifies being one of the top overall talents taken on draft night that can elevate any franchise for years to come!

What makes a NFL Hall of Fame OT?

Consistent qualities found among Hall of Fame OTs:

- Longevity - average HOF OT played 13 seasons
- Health - average HOF OT played in 94% of games
- Above average size (in the modern era)
- Attended a Power 5 college

Who does PJJ resemble?

Orlando Pace

Joe Thomas

Jonathan Ogden

Steve Hutchinson

But who does he resemble most?

Parris Johnson Jr. HOF Comparison

Orlando Pace

Paris is on PACE to end up in Canton

- Similar in size:
 - Height (PJJ: 6'6", Pace: 6'7")
 - BMI (PJJ: 35.939, Pace: 36.612)
 - Arm Length (PJJ: 35.75", Pace: 36.25")
 - Hand Size (PJJ: 11", Pace: 10.75")
- Both Ohio State alumni
 - Established, high quality coaching
- Consistent Health: Pace only missed 4 games in his career, PJJ missed no games the last 2 years as a starter

Paris and Orlando have so many qualities in common. There is a reason Orlando Pace was selected 1st overall and there should be no reason Paris is not the first tackle off the board.

Why Not the Other Guys?

Peter Skoronski

- Build is not suited for a franchise OT
 - 45th percentile Height
 - Hands are only bigger than 1 HOFer (with supporting Combine data)
 - Arms are shorter than 20 HOFers (with supporting Combine data)
- Northwestern has only produced 1 first round T/G in the last 40 years
 - Ohio State has produced 5 in the same time period (1 HOFer)
- Given up more hits in 2022 than PJJ has in his entire CAREER

- 75th Percentile Height
- Strictly locked to T in college
 - No snaps at any other OL position
- Worst PFF run block grade of the top-4 2023 OT

Anton Harrison

- 45th Percentile Height
- Least amount of experience (19 starts)
- Highest BMI of the top-4 2023 OL prospects which does not translate for NFL success.
- 4 current UGA OL in 1st string positions on NFL rosters vs. OSU (8)

Broderick Jones

Paris Johnson Jr.

Improvement

2021 PFF Grade

79.1

2022 PFF Grade

83.1

2021 Pass Block Grade

64.1

2022 Pass Block Grade

79.1

2021 Offensive Snaps

768

2022 Offensive Snaps

827

2021 Hits Allowed

1

2022 Hits Allowed

0

2021 Penalties/Snap

0.008

2022 Penalties/Snap

0.003

Overall Takeaway

With proven improvement over 1 year, PJJ has proven that he has nowhere to go but up. A big tackle with great movement, PJJ will certainly fit into his next offensive line and exceed every expectation that has been set for him.

Why PJJ?

PJJ is in the 89th percentile in terms of height, 85th in arm length, 99th in hands

He has improved a lot in only one year while going through a position change. He can only continue that trend with more time at the position.

He has shown versatility by effectively playing two positions on the offensive line.

Ohio State has produced tremendous talent on the offensive line and PJJ is following their footsteps